

With all of the data that I've gathered, I managed to acquire a glimpse of how effective on-site engagement on library and utilization among STI Senior High School and Tertiary Students in Global City.

My research aims to assess the effectiveness of on-site engagement strategies on library utilization among STI Senior High School and Tertiary Students in Global City. The study involved 20 respondents, including students from Grade 11, Grade 12, 1st year, 2nd year, and 3rd year.

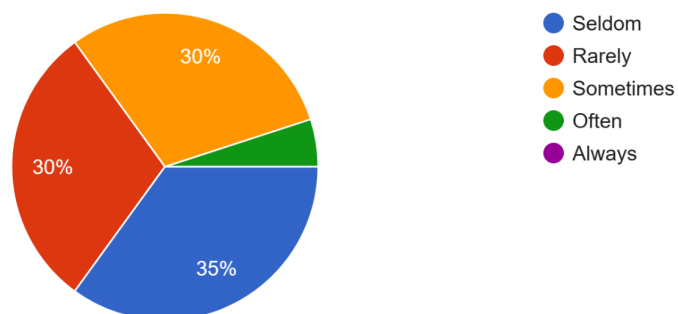

The survey results indicate that most students visit the STI Global City library infrequently, with a majority reporting "Seldom" or "Rarely." Similarly, the utilization of study spaces or facilities at the library for academic work is low, with the majority responding "Seldom" or "Rarely." Regarding the relevance of resources available at the library to coursework, responses are mixed, with some students indicating that resources are often relevant while others find them seldom or rarely relevant. Similarly, the utilization of technology or digital resources available at the library for studies is reported as infrequent, with most students responding "Rarely" or "Seldom."

Interestingly, a significant portion of respondents believe that an online library platform could better support their academic needs compared to the physical library, with most indicating "Often" or "Always." This suggests a potential preference among students for digital resources over traditional library facilities.

In conclusion, my study's findings that I would recommend is to input an online library of STI to further engage students with the content of the library without having to acquire on-site specially outside office hours.
